John Fitzgerald Kennedy was born in Brookline, Massachusetts. He was also the 35th president of the United States of America! J.F.K thought about other people a lot.

One way that J.F.K. Thought about other people was he saved someone who's back was too burned to swim. J.F.K. Saved his life by holding his life jacket strap in his mouth and swam to a nearby island. He swallowed so much salt water that he threw up for very long. Another way J.F.K. Thought about others was he started the Peace Corps. I think the Peace Corps made the world a better place. Another way is he participated in the Civil Rights movement.

He had a meeting with Martin Luther King J.R. and the other leaders of the Civil Rights movement. Another way is that he made a famous speech "my fellow Americans, ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country." When he said those words he was thinking about our country, The United states of America. And, most important of all, he was nice to his family.

J.F.K. taught me to care, look out for, and help other people. I think J.F.K. made a change to the world. I think J.F.K. made the world a better place to live in! This is what J.F.K. means to me!
